A Plot to Assassinate President Arthur.

The Garfield Family Remove to Mentor—Various Rumors Concerning Cabinet Changes—A Heavy Blow to Conkling in New York Elections.

Particulars of the Accidents and Explosions at Detroit, Council Bluffs, etc.—Shooting Affray at Hunnewell, Kansas, and Carving in Arkansas—A Batch of Crimes and Casualties.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—A. M. Bagley, who is employed in the army medical museum, has created something of a sensation in police and official circles by filing a sworn statement with the chief of police that he had overheard a plot to assassinate President Arthur. Bagley's affidavit is in effect, that about midnight last Monday night, while lying on his bed, which was in the lower front room fronting on Missouri avenue, he heard two men talking of the assassination of President Arthur. Bagley states that his window blinds were closed and two men were leaning against a tree box immediately in front of his room; that one man said it would happen in one month; that he, (referring to some man whose name is not mentioned) had come to kill President Arthur within that time. That the man who had thus sworn was a Garfield republican. Bagley said he was so much agitated that he did not know what to do; that next day he informed the chief clerk of his division of what he had heard, and he advised Bagley to report the facts to the police.

Concerning the President.

The reported plot to assassinate the president has put the police on the qui vive although the general impression is there is more imagination than reality in the story. To-night four officers were on duty in the vicinity of the Jones mansion, and visitors were closely scrutinized. The president's household are disposed to ridicule the report. Mr. [illegible], private secretary to the president, requests the press to deny the reports that the president has suffered from malaria. His health is good, and he has suffered from nothing but fatigue and anxiety during the summer. He will not occupy the White House until December at the earliest, meantime [illegible] Capitol Hill, especially in such weather as that now prevailing.

[illegible] advice Bagley filed his sworn statement. The police authorities do not attach much importance to this matter, but have quietly taken some precautions for the protection of the president. There [illegible] no doubt that Bagley overheard the conversation he reports, but it was probably some half drunken fellows talking. Bagley is a nephew of H. [illegible] Bagley, of Virginia, who was a republican candidate for congress last year, and he was appointed to office by Senator Logan. He has written Senator Logan an account of the affair.

The Garfields Leave for Mentor.

[illegible], Sept. 28.—Mrs. Garfield, her children, [illegible] accompanied by Private Secretary Brown, Gen. Swain and Col. Rockwell and their [illegible], drove to the Union depot this morning in closed carriages, where a special train had been made up to take them to Mentor. The train consisted of a baggage car and the elegant Pennsylvania coach which brought the party from Washington. They wended their way quietly through the crowd that thronged the depot and entered the car, soon afterward all were ready to start. The ladies were all heavily veiled, so that they escaped the [illegible] of the crowd. A few minutes after one the train pulled up and started for Mentor, just ahead of the regular accommodation train.

[illegible] Lingering at the Park.

[illegible] still lingers about the park, and many [illegible] passing through the pavilion, although the body has been removed to the cemetery. Thousands of people seem not to tire of gazing on the place where the remains lay, and where most of the decorations, though somewhat withered [illegible], are yet left. Electric, calcium and [illegible] illuminate the scene to-night, the same as [illegible].

A Sensible Agreement.

[illegible] journey with the funeral train from Washington, the republican and democratic senators discussed the political situation fairly and reached [illegible] adjust matters satisfactorily in the senate [illegible] a struggle like that of last spring which [illegible] the country and be unseemly. The arrangement was not to be binding on those not present, but it is believed the non-participants will acquiesce. [illegible] Edmunds for the republicans and [illegible] for the democrats were prime factors of the [illegible] notified their party friends by mail [illegible] that caucuses would be held October [illegible] at Washington by their respective [illegible]. If the agreement were carried out a committee of five would be chosen to arrange [illegible]. The result of the agreement was that Anthony [illegible] other republican selected by the republicans should be made acting vice-president [illegible] without dissent; that the democrats [illegible] the secretary of the senate office now [illegible] the present sergeant-at-arms, or [illegible] successor. The present commissioners [illegible]. The senate consists of 37 democrats and 35 republicans, and [illegible], who will act with the republicans in [illegible], in accordance with his speech [illegible] in which he claimed that the organization should harmonize with the executive.

[illegible] Monument Fund.

[illegible], Sept. 28.—The Garfield monument [illegible] passed the following: [illegible] of the United States: The movement [illegible] for the erection of a monument over [illegible] A. Garfield is being responded [illegible] of the country east and west, [illegible] in order to make it popular and [illegible] and will be necessary for [illegible] to organize. The [illegible] all national banks, private banks, newspapers and postmasters [illegible] to the movement by post[illegible] contributions and to send [illegible] National Bank of Cleveland, [illegible] as treasurer of the fund; [illegible] postoffice address of contributors [illegible] will all be recorded in [illegible] in the monument. [illegible] American writer in the [illegible] American in London would [illegible] in placing a slab of American [illegible] Abbey, with the words, [illegible] common sorrow of English [illegible] in the death of President [illegible] correspondent suggests that President [illegible] this permission his first act [illegible] from the abbey with similar [illegible] to Washington.

[illegible]

[illegible] is now $321,000.

[illegible] Garfield's Body being Stolen.

[illegible].—There is no danger of Garfield's body [illegible], as every safeguard a sup[illegible].

General Hancock at Cleveland.

[illegible], Sept. 27.—Gen. Hancock called at the [illegible] to-day, where an impromptu reception [illegible]. He declined a general reception.

A [illegible] Only to be Solved by the Experiment.

[illegible], Sept. 27.—Telegram: Guiteau will be [illegible] Tuesday next, and the problem [illegible] the authorities is how to [illegible] from jail to the court house. [illegible] law U. S. troops cannot be [illegible]. It is doubtful whether the police are [illegible] of keeping him out of the hands [illegible] will watch the movement. It is [illegible] McGill, the guard who reported [illegible] him, really undertook to kill [illegible] self-defense, and that Guiteau [illegible] on that occasion. He is in a [illegible] of fright and implores protection.

[illegible] Washington special details a conspiracy [illegible] which existed among soldiers, [illegible] by Sergeant Mason's precipitancy. [illegible] was, some morning or evening [illegible] relieved from guard duty for the [illegible] to march as near the jail as we could [illegible] through some kind of a drill, so as [illegible] of Guiteau to us. We were [illegible] the form of loading and unloading [illegible] then on the signal the whole [illegible] at Guiteau. The whole crowd [illegible] we would be equally guilty, and [illegible] ever know which of us fired the [illegible] effect. Mason heard of it in some [illegible] to steal the credit from us, fired at [illegible].

[illegible] Wants to Try Guiteau.

[illegible], Sept. 28. The legal authorities of [illegible] county have addressed the attorney [illegible] and attorney general of the U. S. [illegible] of filing counts before the grand [illegible] Co. against Guiteau for the murder [illegible]. It is held that a waiver of a coroner [illegible] by the state does not deprive the grand jury of its power to indict a criminal.

New York Politics.

The Times says concerning the recent elections [illegible] in one or two cases a change of feeling is [illegible] and significant of a much deeper [illegible] of distrust in the ranks of republican voters [illegible] management of the party in this [illegible].

Conkling Losing Everywhere.

[illegible] are selecting delegates to the [illegible] convention daily, and the Conkling [illegible] everywhere.

Conkling Badly Left Behind.

ALBANY, Sept. 28.—A list of delegates to the [illegible] state convention chosen up to this time [illegible] as follows: Anti-machine 151, machine 5, [illegible].

A Conference with Conkling.

UTICA, Sept. 28.—Much excitement and comment [illegible] this afternoon when Senator Jones of [illegible], the intimate and confidential friend of the [illegible], stepped off the cars. He proceeded without delay to the residence of Conkling. A long conference was held. Rumors of immediate changes, [illegible] flying about town and every one is upon the [illegible] to learn the result of the conference.

The Gains all on the Garfield Side.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—A Herald's Utica special [illegible]: It would be difficult to exaggerate the intensity of feeling which dominates strong republicans and democrats alike in relation to the state convention [illegible] to be held at New York on the 5th of October [illegible] at Albany on the 11th. It really appears [illegible] certainty that Tammany, which is disgusted [illegible] and despised from one end of the state to the other, will receive its quietus in Albany. Among the republicans the gains are on the side of the half [illegible] or Garfield men, as they are being called. How it will end it is difficult to foresee, but it is [illegible] ex-Senator Platt will manage the convention.

Particulars of the Council Bluffs Explosion.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Sept. 28.—The terrible explosion here last evening proves even more awful in its effects than at first supposed. The scene presented on the grounds is simply beyond description. The round house of the company is almost totally demolished; the car and repair shops, 50 by 100 feet, were completely leveled, the freight house 20 by 100 feet, is a total wreck, and about 50 box cars were blown to pieces. Four engines were buried in the round house, but are not greatly damaged. Patrick Barnett, fireman of the engine which was in the round house at the time was in the cab of the engine when the explosion took place, but miraculously escaped, not even being scratched. His coat, which he had hung outside of the cab, was torn to shreds. Four or five small frame residences were 50 rods south of the spot, and the occupant of one, Mr. Van Buren, was struck by a large piece of a wheel and will probably die. A rock weighing 400 pounds was blown three-quarters of a mile, and in falling sunk almost out of sight in the earth. Reports were received by the Nonpareil to-day from towns 20 miles away, which state that the shock was very plainly felt at that distance, and in many places people regarded it as an earthquake shock. Windows were broken in houses 12 miles from the city. The loss sustained by the Rock Island company will probably be nearly half a million dollars.

A Large Order.

LITTLE ROCK, Sept. 28.—The directors of the Paris [illegible] narrow guage railroad met here to-day and consolidated the Missouri and Arkansas lines. A contract is just closed for 40,000 tons of steel rails, claimed to be the largest contract for steel rails ever made in this country. The length of the line will be over 1600 miles, the terminus being the City of Mexico.

Carving in Arkansas.

LITTLE ROCK, Sept. 28.—A horrible butchery occurred at Webb City, Franklin county, Saturday night. Two colored men, named Thomas Beltes and Jackey Richardson, went into a saloon in which were a number of men, some drunk. Two white men, named Berry Harwood and Geo. Hughes, approached Beltes and Richardson, and drawing knives, commenced carving. Harwood stabbed Beltes in the forehead and stomach, causing death in a few hours. Richardson was stabbed in the breast by Hughes, who escaped. Harwood was captured and identified by his victim, who lived just long enough to point him out.

Seceding Stalwarts.

UTICA, Sept. 28.—At the second assembly district convention to-day, the anti-stalwart element elected a chairman by 40 to 8. The eight stalwarts, representing the town of Marshall and first and second wards of Rome, immediately withdrew and elected a contesting delegation to the state convention.

A New Horse Disease.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—A disease, called pink-eye, is doing great damage here among horses. Many have died, and some recover. The eye gets inflamed and the horse loses vitality very rapidly unless the disease is checked. It is an entirely new disease.

The New Tichborne Claimant.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—The World reports that Ferris, of San Diego, the Tichborne claimant, is on his way east with the double intention of establishing his claim for a soldier's pension and going to England to claim the Tichborne estate.

The Railroad Wreck at Detroit.

DETROIT, Sept. 28.—The latest news from the scene of the wrecked sleeping car at Grosse Isle is more favorable. It is now thought no lives were lost. The missing man, Bloom, is reported heard from. The visit of a diver to the submerged car reveals no bodies therein. All baggage was also got out by him. The escape from loss of life is well nigh miraculous.

River Collision.

A collision occurred this morning between the propeller Jay Gould and tug Swain of Detroit, just off Malden, near the mouth of Detroit river. The Swain sunk in 13 feet of water.

Civilized Sioux.

FORTRESS MONROE, Sept. 27.—Thirty Indian students who have spent the past three years in Hampton normal school leave to-morrow for Dakota, where they are destined to become instructors among their respective tribes. Superintendent Armstrong expects to bring back an equal number of new students.

Courtney wins the race at Rochester.

ROCHESTER, Sept. 28.—Courtney to-day easily defeated Riley and Lee and Plaisted in the three mile race on the Genesee river. Charlotte Lee was second. Time, 20 minutes 15 seconds. This unprecedented time is attributed to circumstances that the three mile course was about a quarter of a mile short.

Cowboys attempt to "take a Town."

HUNNEWELL, Ks., Sept. 28.—A terrible shooting affray occurred just after noon to-day. The fracas began in a dance house. After several shots three cowboys, Bill Mills, Allison Carter and Al. Chaplain came out, mounted horses and rode up Main street firing their pistols to the right and left. They rode down the street again on the south sidewalk, firing into doors and windows. When nearing the west end of town Mayor A. L. Hughes opened fire with a shotgun. Chaplain was shot in the face, but rode on until Mills' horse was killed and Mills seriously wounded in the back. Carter and Chaplain then turned back and continued shooting at Hughes and the crowd. Miss Calder, who was passing by, was shot in the forehead and instantly killed. Chaplain then took Mills on his horse and left for the Indian territory line. Mills was so badly wounded that he was left on the prairie just across the line. A posse of citizens followed Chaplain and Carter, and captured them several miles down in the territory after a stubborn resistance. Carter and Chaplain are in jail at this place, and Mills is in a critical condition.

The Chinese Students.

HARTFORD, Sept. 27.—The special Chinese educational commission established in this city several years ago finally closed its doors to-day. The last party of students, 27 in number, have started for China, in charge of Commissioner Woo and one of the teachers and servants. The fine building erected here by the Chinese government two years ago will be sold. Young Wing, attached to the Chinese legation, remains in this country for the present, but it is expected that he will return to China next winter, after the arrival at Washington of the Chinese minister who has been recently appointed. A large party assembled at the depot to-day to bid farewell to the students, many of whom have been received in the best families of this city and formed very pleasant friendships.

Yacht Race.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—A match race between the Scotch yacht Madge and the American yacht Schemer is [illegible] to-day. These vessels passed Sandy Hook buoy, going out with the Madge 2¼ seconds in advance. Madge rounded the Sandy Hook light schooner at 10:47.

Prohibition Convention.

CHICAGO, Sept 28.—The Boston prohibitory state convention met at noon with 150 delegates present. Thomas J. Lathrop was elected permanent chairman.

Stockholders' Meeting.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy to-day heard read a circular from President J. M. Forbes, setting forth that the completion and operation of the Republican Valley road and the Burlington & Colorado railroad would give the C. B. & Q. the most direct route to Denver, and open up a market for Nebraska farmers not hitherto enjoyed, and give the road a supply of coal trade near Denver. The C. B. & Q. was about to obtain a considerable amount of bonds of the Republican Valley railroad and eventually the roads would consolidate. The stockholders were allowed an opportunity to subscribe for $7,875,000 of C. B. & Q. 4 per cent bonds, together with Republican Valley R. R. Co.'s stock scrip. Provided the stockholders assent to-day, it is to be paid for in installments of an average date of February 1st. By this arrangement, every holder of 70 shares of Burlington stock received a bond of 10 shares of Republican Valley stock, for which he pays but $1000, in four installments. John VanWortwick presided at the meeting and three-quarters of the capital stock was represented. Propositions in the circular were laid before the meeting and the action of the directors was ratified, as were the other propositions of the three-quarter vote, and the meeting adjourned.

Ferryboat Sunk.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 28.—A dispatch just received says the ferryboat from the Isle of Hope to Skutaway Island, sprung a leak yesterday about 400 yards from the shore. A party of 18 market people were on board for Savannah. The boat filled and sunk within a very few minutes. Twelve people were drowned and the remainder rescued.

Boiler Explosion.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 27.—The boiler of an engine on the Hastings and Dakota division of Missouri & St. Paul railway exploded this morning near Prior Lake while running fifteen miles an hour. The engine was thrown 150 feet forward and off the track, two cars being destroyed. The engineer, Dave Bradbury, was thrown a considerable distance and died soon after. The fireman and conductor were slightly injured. No passengers were hurt, and they were sent to their destination on a special train.

WASHINGTON CITY.

The Current Idea.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Attorney General MacVeagh stated this evening that he recognized to the fullest the propriety of President Arthur in selecting as his confidential advisers gentlemen who had heretofore sustained relations not only of personal good will, but also of political sympathy with him. Indeed, he did not think any administration could be strong if there was any ground for suspicion or distrust among its members. As soon, therefore, as President Arthur had taken the oath of office, MacVeagh said he had tendered his resignation in writing. He also assured the president that his resignation was not mere form but a fact. He hoped it would be convenient to designate a successor by the time the senate met in special session. MacVeagh added that on public grounds he felt no difficulty in pursuing the course his feelings dictated. The only political work to which he attached any importance now was the work of administrative reform including of course the exposure and energetic pursuit of all plunderers of the public treasury. If President Arthur engages heartily and thoroughly in that good work, as he hoped and believed he would, then he was entitled to the credit of doing it with an attorney general of his own selection, and not with one inherited from his predecessor.

Stalwart News.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—A World's special says: Arthur sticks to his friends, and he now wishes by one blow to strike Windom and exalt Hillhouse. Hillhouse has been popular in Wall street, and is well known in his official and financial relations. The rumor that George Bliss was to be the president's private secretary is now succeeded by the statement that he is to be appointed justice of the supreme court in place of Ward Hunt, who will be retired as soon as congress meets, when Hillhouse is to be made secretary of the treasury; and by the way, Gov. Morgan who is too ill to take any office, backs up the nomination of Hillhouse for the secretaryship. Gen. James will be assistant treasurer. The postmaster, of course, will then go west. A bold stalwart to-day loudly declares that it will be offered to ex-Senator Dorsey of Arkansas.

There is a belief that Postmaster General James and Attorney General MacVeagh will not be allowed to resign until the star route prosecutions have been concluded lest any failure on the part of the government might be attributed to a desire to shield the accused parties. The names of Jones and Logan are spoken of in connection with the interior department and that of Emory Storrs for the head of the department of justice, while Judge Settle of North Carolina is assigned to the navy and ex-Governor Morgan of New York to the treasury. Blaine is talked of for the English mission and the name of Hamilton Fish has been whispered as his possible successor; Don Carlos Buell is also spoken of in connection with the war department.

Arthur in favor of David Davis.

President Arthur is reported as favoring the election of David Davis to the presidency of the senate if this shall prevent a sharp conflict between the parties. Arthur has taken hold of the work before him with a will, and since the remains of Garfield left the city he has been laboring assiduously to get his affairs in order against the time when a rush for office will begin.

Additional Cabinet News.

Judge Folger's name has been frequently mentioned in cabinet speculations during the past three days. It is remembered he was strongly backed by Conkling for the position when Garfield came in. The fact that he made a claim of $180,000 for percentage on the sale of internal revenue stamps while he was assistant treasurer in New York was urged against his appointment and prevailed. Had this claim not stood in the way, it is ascertained Garfield had determined to appoint him, and thus ended all trouble between the New York senator and the administration. The court of claims decided against Folger's claim. Boutwell of Massachusetts, who had an interview yesterday with the president, returned home to-day. In conversation he admitted he had been summoned here by telegraph for consultation by the president, but declined to state the subject discussed. That it referred either to his appointment to a place in the new cabinet or a supreme bench vacancy, is the general assertion. It is on the cards that he will take Hunt's place as secretary of the navy. Some southern politicians of more notoriety than prominence visited the president to suggest the name of Rev. W. V. Hicks for postmaster general. Hicks is now preaching in Dr. Sunderland's church in this city. At the close of the war he preached for a while in Charleston, and subsequently in Savannah and Macon, and latterly in Jacksonville, Fla., always appearing in politics where opportunity offered. He was a Grant delegate in the Chicago convention, and is possessed of fine oratorical powers. General Beale, who has been mentioned for secretary of war, should Lincoln retire, declines to be a candidate, and is well satisfied with his present important post, and does not believe Mr. Lincoln will retire.

Redemption of Government Bonds.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—At the treasury department it is believed that several million bonds not included in the twenty million calls will be received. All bonds specified in the call are 6's, extended at 3½ per cent. interest, and it is the intention and policy of the secretary of the treasury to continue the purchase of bonds as the state of finances may warrant, and to call in all extended 6's before beginning upon the 5's or 6's. There are now outstanding and bearing interest at 3½ per cent, $178,000,000. The present call will reduce this amount to $158,000,000, with a still farther reduction depending upon the proportion of called 6's, which may be included in the weekly $2,000,000 purchases. The reason given for the purchase of these bonds is that the government can obtain them upon better terms than any other bonds, and prefers to let the banks and bankers pay a premium upon 4's and 4½'s per cents rather than the treasury should do so.

Cabinet Changes.

A Washington special says: It seems to be understood here that cabinet changes are impending. Blaine will leave the cabinet. He has been asked to remain, but his friends say he needs a long period of rest and will retire to private life. Windom is anxious to return to his home. James, it is believed, will leave the cabinet and go into the banking business. He can see now the error he committed in accepting the portfolio.

President Gonzales Rather Behind Time.

The president has received the following from President Gonzales: "The Mexican republic profoundly sympathizes with the government and people of the United States of America in rendering funeral honors to President Garfield."

To this President Arthur sent the following reply:

"Manuel Gonzales, President Mexican Government: On behalf of the American government and people, I acknowledge with grateful appreciation the message of sympathy you send from our neighboring and friendly nation for the great loss which has fallen upon us in the death of the one whom you join with us in honoring. CHESTER A. ARTHUR."

Presidential Callers.

Members of the cabinet who returned to-day called upon the president during the afternoon. Secretary Hunt being the first and Secretary Windom the last to do so. They staid but a short time. The president saw but few other visitors to-day. Ex-Secretary Boutwell was with him for half an hour in the evening. He described the president as appearing much fatigued and somewhat distressed by the heat, which has been excessive for several days.

Condolence from a Descendant of Columbus.

The Spanish minister sent the following from New York: Cristobal Colon, duke of Veragua, descendant of the illustrious Colon, sends me the following telegram: "The congress to-day assembled in Madrid for its first session, unanimously ask you to convey to the widow and mother and children of General Garfield and to the American people the sincere expression of its sympathy and condolence in the great loss experienced by America."

Assistant Secretary Hitt thus addressed Minister Barca in reply: "Your telegram transmitting the message of Christopher Columbus, duke of Veragua, the descendant and representative of the great discoverer, has been communicated to the family of President Garfield. In their name and that of the government, I hasten to assure you the sympathetic expression from the body of distinguished men assembled at Madrid, and from the descendant of Columbus is gratefully received by the widow, mother and children of the departed president and by our grief stricken people."

The Examination of Experts.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—A New York special says: George F. Schrady, editor of the Medical Record and Dr. Daniel B. Weisse, professor of surgical anatomy in the medical department of the university of New York, returned late this evening from Washington, where, at the instance of Dr. Bliss, they have made a thorough examination of the viscera of the late president, now deposited in the medical museum. Dr. Schrady was invited to Washington by Dr. Bliss, whose history will appear in the Medical Record Saturday. In order to obtain materials for a review of the case from a medical point of view, he has been furnished with every facility available for the formation of a coherent theory of the nature of the wound and propriety of treatment. He passed three days examining the preparations and receiving from Dr. Bliss his own record of the details of the pulse and temperature, coupled with a full exposition of the medical measures adopted.

Dr. Weisse was invited by Dr. Bliss to examine the preparations as a surgical expert, and has returned with accurate drawings, illustrating the track of the bullet and the cause of death. The official history of the case is now in preparation under the editorial supervision of Surgeon Woodward, and will be published in the American Journal of Medical Science and in the Medical Review of this city. Dr. Weisse says Dr. Bliss's competence is fully shown by examinations, and his treatment was judicious. The vertebrae injured was the first lumbar, which was completely perforated, but not in such a manner as to injure the spinal marrow. The ball entered at the right and passed out at the left, producing a compound comminuted fracture of the body of the vertebrae. The portion of the viscera in preparation includes the pancreas behind which the ball finally lodged and to the lower border of which it became fixed and encysted. It has been stated in an abstract of a paper about to be issued by Dr. Brynton, giving an account of the autopsy as he saw it, that the ball was finally found in the bottom of the bowl in which the viscera was placed, thus conveying the impression that its position during life was uncertain.

"Was this so?" asked the reporter.

"You may contradict that statement flatly. The ball was not found in the bottom of the bowl but was contained in a cyst which was fixed to the pancreas. The cyst was a very strong one and had to be cut with a knife in order to remove the bullet. It was removed from the body with the viscera, of course, but it was not lying in the bottom of the bowl by any means. It was not the aneurism but the splenetic artery's rupture which caused the sudden death by internal hemorrhage. Pyaemia did not exist."

Dr. Schrady said he went to Washington rather prejudiced against Bliss, but had been completely undeceived by his study of the case. He had examined the case three days, and were he wounded in the same way he would send for Bliss whose treatment he fully endorsed. Any attempt to probe the original track of the bullet would have caused his immediate death. The nature of the wound rendered death inevitable, either by rupture of the cyst and sloughing off of the aneurismal sac and consequent hemorrhage, or by septic infection. The rupture in the artery will not in the final report be attributed to spicula of bone from the injured vertebrae, but to the injury of the walls of the artery by the ball.

Will Continue the Call?

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—The Commercial Bulletin says: Secretary Windom has determined to call the three and a half continued sixes, as he wants bonds from time to time for sinking fund purchases, and will not commence on continued fives till he exhausts the sixes. A number of national bank people protest against this policy, but everybody in authority round the treasury department favors it.

Senator Ben Hill in Declining Health.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Senator Johnson says Senator Ben Hill will probably never be able to fully discharge the duties of senator, although it may be he will appear at the called session of the senate and vote. Senator Platt of Connecticut, who is ill, will pair with Senator Hill should the latter desire it.

MacVeagh's Absence not Irreparable.

The Times thinks MacVeagh's loss as a cabinet officer will not be irreparable so far as the star route prosecutions are concerned. While he has shown the utmost earnestness in the work, he has left its active prosecution to others and a substitute for his directing hand can be found without much difficulty.

The Star Route Thieves will be Prosecuted at Once.

It is the intention of the postmaster general to push the star route prosecutions vigorously now, and do it immediately. Col. Geo. Bliss of New York will control and direct the prosecution. There is a mass of evidence alleged and ready for presentation to the grand jury, and it is positively asserted by those who are concerned in the management of cases that there is sufficient evidence now on hand to procure several indictments. Guiteau's case will receive the first attention of the grand jury, but that will scarcely occupy more than a day or two at most, and the star route cases will be taken up as soon as other pressing criminal cases besides Guiteau's will admit of. It is now believed the grand jury will reach the star route cases by the latter part of next week. A high official of the postoffice department, not Postmaster General James, said to a press reporter to-night that because of President Garfield's condition very little progress could be made in the star route prosecutions during the summer, beyond collecting and arranging evidence; that during that time the postoffice department had been compelled to submit quietly to the abuse and denunciation of the star route ring and its organs, but that now an active prosecution of the ring will be made. He said President Arthur is as fully determined as ever his predecessor was to punish men who defrauded the government through star route contracts, and that Postmaster General James will remain at the head of the department until those prosecutions are all ended. The opinion is advanced by some that the time of Postmaster General James, expires by limitation on October 18, one month after President Garfield died. This official said if this is the proper construction of the law, then James will be reappointed to remain in office until he finishes up the star route cases, as President Arthur means that no guilty man shall escape, and that James' administration had reduced the expenses of the department, by cutting off useless star route expenses, by the grand sum of $16,000,000, and that notwithstanding the complaints, all told, which have been received of any inconvenience to the people by reason of his curtailment. These complaints had nearly all been instigated by contractors. The reduced service gives to sections through which routes run all mail facilities that are proper and necessary. Those engaged in the star route prosecutions had no confidence whatever in District Attorney Corkhill who had obstructed and delayed the work of prosecution by every means in his power, and it has been determined that he shall not have any control or direction of the case. The president has the fullest confidence in ex-District Attorney Bliss of New York, who is an old personal friend, and fully approves of his selection as chief prosecutor. The president expressed a desire that prosecution be pressed as vigorously as justice to all parties will allow. Undoubtedly the accused parties had hopes of impressing President Arthur that this prosecution was really a persecution, and at least rendering him lukewarm in the matter, and they are disappointed at their signal failure. The ring made a prompt and bold move to get both James and MacVeagh out of the cabinet, and thus overthrow the prosecution at one blow, but the result has been altogether unfavorable to their schemes.

Queen Victoria to Mrs. Garfield.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—Blaine, Secretary, Washington, D. C.—I have received the following telegram from the queen: "Would you express my sincere condolence to the late president's mother, and inquire after her health as well as after Mrs. Garfield." Her majesty adds, "I should be thankful if you would procure me a good photograph of General Garfield." LOWELL, Minister.

Assistant Secretary Hitt replied as follows:

Lowell, Minister, London—Your telegram expressing the compassion of the Queen for the mother of the late president was duly forwarded to Mrs. Garfield at Mentor, Ohio. I have just received the following reply: "Please request Mr. Lowell to express to her majesty, the queen, the grateful acknowledgment of the mother of General Garfield, and also my own, for the tender, womanly sympathy she has been pleased to send, and also that her majesty's wish will be complied with at an early day. LUCRETIA R. GARFIELD."

You will please make fitting communication of their reply to her majesty. HITT.

London Services.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Memorial services were held this evening in the church of St. Martin-in-the-fields. Long before the commencement the approaches to the church were crowded with English and Americans mourners, both sides of the building were soon crammed, and not an available inch of room was left. Lowell, the American minister was present. Archbishop of Canterbury officiated and delivered an address. The union jack and stars and stripes conjoined were wrapped with crape and half-masted, hung in many parts of the city, and the west end of the whole balcony of the Conservative club of Liverpool was draped.

Garfield's intelligence and honesty and the deep sorrow which has fallen upon the widow and mother. The speakers laid strong emphasis on the ties uniting the two republics and referred to the departure at this present moment of a French delegation for Yorktown. [illegible] Americans to exterminate all party divisions so there should be no longer north and south, but one people. The diplomatic body also called on Minister Morton and offered condolence.

THE LAW OF NEW JERSEY.

If he Can't be Hanged in the District of Columbia he will Certainly Dangle in the Jerseys.

[Special to the Chicago Tribune.]

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 19.—According to the law of New Jersey when a person has received a wound in another state and is carried into New Jersey and dies, the villain who inflicted the wound can be apprehended on the requisition of the governor of New Jersey, tried, sentenced and executed in the state in which his victim died. A law of this kind was made necessary by the fact that men who were mortally wounded went to Jersey City by ferry and there died. The legislature of the state of New Jersey

IN ORDER TO PREVENT ANY HINDRANCE

From taking advantage of the fact that a river which could be crossed in five minutes separated the jurisdiction of New Jersey from New York, passed a law, that, when any person received a wound in the jurisdiction of another state, and was brought into New Jersey before death came, could in case of death, be apprehended, seized and arrested on a requisition of the governor, and tried for murder in the first degree. In the District of Columbia, where the assault on the president was committed, the common law prevails, and the result is that, as the president died at Long Branch, N. J., in order to secure such punishment as the assassin deserves, he

MUST BE TRIED IN MONMOUTH COUNTY, NEW JERSEY.

The probabilities are that Guiteau will never reach Long Branch. It is known that there is an association in Washington who have sworn to shoot the assassin on sight. But if he should escape assassination he will probably be tried at Freehold, as that is county-seat of the county in which the president died. The coroner of Monmouth Co. who was notified at midnight to-night that the president of the United States had died came here to-night prepared to make the inquest on the body. As the president of the United States died within the jurisdiction of the coroner, he was willing to accept the post mortem which was made by Drs. Bliss, Agnew and Hamilton; but he insisted that, as the death had occurred within his jurisdiction, he felt that it was his duty as coroner of Monmouth county to make an investigation as to the cause of death. This investigation will be made on to-morrow morning, and will be based on the post mortem made by Dr. Bliss. The result will be that he will report to the governor of New Jersey that James A. Garfield died from the effects of

A WOUND INFLICTED UPON HIM BY CHARLES J. GUITEAU

Who he is informed is confined in prison in Washington, D. C., and as he is so confined it will be proper to make a requisition upon the authorities in charge of the District of Columbia for Guiteau that he may be tried in Monmouth county, New Jersey. The county seat of Monmouth is Freehold, and the fall term of the court at which Guiteau may be tried will be October. From what your correspondent hears there is very little likelihood that Guiteau will ever reach Freehold alive. Men who voted for Hancock, but are patriots, have sworn to kill this miserable assassin on sight.

Murder Confession.

The four men recently arrested for the late attempt to wreck the Overland train near Cape Horn, are now undergoing a preliminary examination at Auburn. Mason, one of the gang, has made a full confession, which is corroborated by finding tools, arms, etc., in the place designated by him. All will undoubtedly be held to answer.

Costly Drapery.

Inquiry among dry goods houses shows that draping the city has swept the market of black and white cambrics and nearly all the muslin also is gone. Messrs. Sachs, Heller & Co. were of the opinion that two months would elapse before the San Francisco market would be restored with cambrics. It is estimated that $100,000 was expended in draping the city.

Scandal in High Life.

It is rumored about town that a young gentleman, the son of one of our prominent citizens, yesterday undertook to visit his wrath upon another, whom he charged with trespassing upon his matrimonial domain. The result was the use of a pistol and a consequent flesh wound. The parties are in high life and the families are earnestly endeavoring to keep the matter secret. The shooter is reported to have gone to Arizona. The wounded man is being nursed back to health and the lady in the case is seeking a divorce.

Fatal Shooting at Jacksonville.

JACKSONVILLE, Sept. 28.—An altercation took place here to-day at 12:30 between D. C. Courtenay and Mat Shannon, which resulted in the instant death of Shannon. There had been bad feeling between the two men, and the evidence at the inquest showed that Shannon made the attack. The affray took place in the doorway of Bilger & Maguire's store, where Courtenay and another man were seated. Shannon approached and after abusive language struck at Courtenay. While making the second blow he slipped and fell on Courtenay, who drew a self-cocking pistol and shot him twice rapidly, the first shot striking the abdomen and the second near the corner of the mouth, ranging upward into the brain. Death was instantaneous. Shannon was a blacksmith and leaves a family. Courtenay is in jail and will be examined to-morrow.

Serious Accident at Umatilla Reservation.

PENDLETON, Sept. 28.—On the 25th inst. R. H. Fay, Indian agent in charge of the Umatilla reservation, accompanied by his clerk, Miles, started from the agency to go to the [illegible] springs in a hack drawn by two mules. Failing to return, search was instituted, and the mules were found on the range. The bodies of the men were discovered the next day on the roadside, both being insensible. Miles had one arm and several ribs broken, and was injured about the head. He is still insensible. As far as known, Fay had no bones broken but is terribly bruised and probably seriously injured internally. Dr. Hall, the agency physician, has been in attendance on the men since they were found. [illegible] It is presumed the mules ran off, tore the wagon to pieces and threw the men out.

[Lewiston Teller.]

Gen. Howard, in his book entitled Nez Perce Joseph, makes mention of many incidents of that ever to be remembered campaign, and favorably notices many individuals who are now notorious, but who were then struggling along life's ladder with hands, metaphorically speaking, on the lower rounds. Some were herding sheep, others were stirring swill for swine, and in many other ways were adding wealth to the country. One particular incident he omitted, not because it was not true, but because the party meant was then blackening his boots as industriously as he is now trying to blacken character. One evening, just toward dusk, a tired and belated traveler arrived in one of our frontier settlements, begrimed with blood, powder, dust and corruption and wending his way to a quiet hostelry, commenced to relate, in not very choice English to the crowd, his hairbreadth escape and heroic struggles to save the outlying hamlets from pillage and massacre from the wary foe, not forgetting the [illegible] Sarah. His blood-curdling narratives of how he had with his trusty blade and death dealing rifle laid low very many dusky creatures, took his audience by storm, and between drinks his hearers caught their breath as they took in the herculean labors of this modern Trojan. A whispered consultation followed and a few of the leading citizens quietly withdrew, bringing a halt and passing resolutions; decided that such labors should not go unrewarded. A committee was appointed to select some substantial evidence of their appreciation as the services demanded. The committee procured the article and our hero notified that his presence was required. With trembling limbs he wended his way to the place of presentation, with visions of how he had often been watched, but not in this particular way. The hero was escorted to the platform, and the chairman reiterated the deeds of valor, and with a neat speech presented this blood-stained hero with a fine, beautifully decorated, full jeweled—ladder, filled with wind. Our hero died hot, lachrymose, but with traces deep and strong F. J. Parker retired. This is a fact, and any Boise City resident can testify to it. Gen. Howard has failed to chronicle the incident which should be emblazoned in this history of our territorial struggles with [illegible] skins.

Pocahontas Attacked.

[From the London Standard.]

History has, indeed, been rather hard on the conventional heroines of romance. The late M. Edouard Fournier spent a cynical life in upsetting figures which uncritical chroniclers had set up, and in showing that half the smart sayings attributed to celebrated men were never uttered by them. The first American romance has not even been spared evisceration. In the parish register of Gravesend is an entry which every year the "cultivated American" reverentially peruses. It relates, how, in 1616, March 21, Rebecca Wrolfe, wyffe of Thos. Wrolfe, gent., a Virginia lady borne, was buried in the chancell. This of course refers to the Indian Pocahontas, or Matoax—which was her real name—one of the numerous [illegible] of Powhatan, the Indian "emperour of Virginia," who saved the life of doughty Capt. John Smith, married John—not Thomas—Rolfe, and for the year preceding her death was the sensation of the English court. It now turns out that so far from being the innocent young barbarian of the novelist, she was an impish and not very well behaved little squaw well known in the court yard of the English fort at Jamestown. She even scandalized the [illegible] Virginian dames by betaking in early life to the [illegible] of one [illegible] captain of [illegible] and subsequently was "married" to John Rolfe, simply as part of the policy of that unscrupulous satrap, Capt. Argall, in order to extract favorable terms from her wily sire, Powhatan. So far from her having saved Captain John Smith's life, as related by that unfortunate adventurer, there is every reason for believing that he was barely acquainted with her in Virginia, and certainly never saw his supposed benefactress on her visit to England. Indeed, the story was most probably invented after the red dame became famous, in order to give currency to the "General History of Virginia" and its penniless author. As for Master John Rolfe, being the "lovesick swain" he is invariably represented to be in the transpontine drama, it is now ascertained that he was a married man, and therefore committed bigamy with the Virginia lady borne. There there is to be an end to all [illegible] awaken[illegible] from the dreams of our youth!

WRINKLED FACES.

It is a painful sight to see young ladies faded in their [illegible] because the wrinkled and unnaturally old faces [illegible] makes it requisite [illegible] to any one who deserves the tendency of the times [illegible] apparent. THE YAKIMA AGENCY.

An Intrigue to Oust Rev. J. H. Wilbur.

[Special to the Chicago Tribune.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 18.—Some interesting letters are made public here to-day, showing the sharp struggles going on from time to time among a religious denomination to get control of the Indian missions. It appears that the Roman Catholics have in Washington what is called a Bureau of Catholic Indian Missions, at the head of which is J. B. A. Brouillet. It appears that at present an Indian agent by the name of Wilbur, under the auspices of the Methodist denomination, has charge of the agency of the Yakima reservation. The Bureau of Catholic Indian Missions has been making a strong effort to have him removed and a Roman Catholic put in his place. In a letter dated the 18th of last July and addressed to the very Rev. J. M. Cataldo, at the Nez Perces Mission, Idaho, Mr. Brouillet incloses the draft of two petitions against Wilbur, with instructions to have signatures obtained all around the reservation at Yakima and in the settlement in this vicinity, at Dalles, Walla Walla, and Vancouver. "Let me advise you," says Brouillet, "to be careful of one thing—namely, to have both petitions copied before using them, and have four copies, [illegible] signed and the citizens. I would never like to have these petitions come back to Washington in our own writing, which is well known in the department." Five days later Mr. Brouillet addressed another letter to the Rev. Father Cataldo, urging vigorous action in the effort to oust the Methodist Wilbur. Among the other things he says: "We must have that gentleman out of the way, and then we will take other steps. My impression is that if we succeed in securing the investigation asked for we will be able to secure the removal, and he being out of the way, it strikes me that we should have no difficulty in getting two of the four churches which are now on the reservation set apart for the use of the Catholics—one for the church and one for school purposes. It will be proven that the four churches have been built with the money of the whole nation, and that it is unjust that the Methodists alone have the benefit of them. Please push the two petitions with all the haste and prudence possible. Until that matter is settled my advice is that Father Carrana should content himself with saying mass and instructing the Indians in one of the Indian houses. If we speak of building, Wilbur will bring against us that article of the treaty which requires the consent of the Indians, the Indian agents and the superintendents before a white man can settle in the reserve, as he did in 1878. It is best, therefore, that we should not raise that question now. Saying mass and instructing the Indians without establishing a permanent residence cannot be regarded by the department as a settlement, and consequently will not be considered a valid objection."

Blue Mountain Passes.

The following from the Boise Statesman is [illegible] what interest us—even if not substantially correct:

Several days ago it was publicly stated that all the men employed on the Blue Mountain division of the Oregon Railway and Navigation company, between Pendleton and Umatilla, would be withdrawn as soon as the road was completed to the former place, and transferred to the scene of their operations in the Palouse country. As this part of the world is seriously interested in obtaining railway connection with the outside world, our people felt not a little chagrined over the outlook. The cause of the suspension of operations never leaked out until yesterday.

Some sixteen years ago, a man named Harvey Meacham, residing in Umatilla county, Oregon, built a toll-road over the Blue Ridge, beginning near the California ranch and ending near Oro Dell, in Union county. After his death his widow married W. A. Foster, who still continues in possession of the property. The story now comes to us from a very direct source, that the Oregon Short Line company has checkmated the plans of Villard by the purchase of Foster's toll-road, which is not only the key to the Meacham Pass, but will also prove a valuable feeder to a railroad while in process of construction. This, if true, compels the Oregon Railway and [illegible] to seek a new route of ingress into the Grande Ronde valley. As that company has spent some $200,000 in getting out ties and timbers along the Meacham route in the past year this must involve a heavy loss to it.

The two remaining passes into the Grande Ronde [illegible] of Oregon, are the Thomas & Ruckel road, which goes up the Umatilla river past the Warm Springs and the Lincton road which follows up the line of the Walla Walla river and thence across a high range. From an observation made without instruments, we would deem the former route the better of the two. It is passable most of the year [illegible] in America, thus guaranteeing a large amount of passenger travel in summer time. And although a longer road than the Meacham route, we are led to believe from a casual observation that the grades will be easier and the wear and tear of iron and rolling stock proportionately.

Should this rumor be true and Villard's line be blocked out of Meacham Pass the narrow gauge road now running from Wallula station to [illegible] mountain, near Weston, would be probably widened to a standard gauge and continued over the mountains to the Grande Ronde, passing near Summerville and tapping the richest portion of that valley. Nor is it likely that these rival roads would leave that beautiful valley by the same route. One would probably go out by Union and the present stage road, while the other would follow the shorter but more expensive route, taking the old emigrant trail through Ladd Canyon. But we shall see what we shall see, and another year will tell the story.

A SPIRITED SPEECH.

Anna Dickinson Enunciates some Telling Remarks at a Temperance Meeting.

At Ocean Grove, N. J., Miss Anna Dickinson succeeded recently in making a scene by throwing a decidedly explosive bombshell in the temperance camp; but fortunately nobody was hurt, and, amid the wreck of gossipy criticism it occasioned, came away she was acknowledged the victor of the field. The Woman's Christian Temperance Union were in session, and Mrs. Hunt of Boston had answered a number of the queries taken from what is known as "[illegible] box." The question was, "What can we do to reclaim fallen women?" On the temperance side of the question Mrs. Hunt took the ground that women had less power of physical recuperation than men, and when they fall in any cases they fall beyond reclamation. The remarks of all the morning had been unfavorable to the ability or expediency of women reforming other women. Miss Dickinson, who was in the audience, arose and took up the subject in a masterly manner. It was soon whispered about who the speaker was, and she carried the audience with her from the start. "I am a temperance advocate," she said, "but I can tell you that woman's proper work is with her sisters and not with men. You fail where you can do the most. The woman who has nothing to do, the giddy, lax, [illegible] creature who learns to [illegible]; the woman who has too much to do, [illegible]—who does a day's work getting her husband's breakfast and attending to her children before she comes to the morning—these, as well as the woman who drinks to drown despair, are the ones who need but do not receive your ministration. You raise the man, but you spurn your fellow woman beneath your feet." Miss Willard, president of the union, afterward called upon Miss Dickinson, and in the afternoon a Quaker lady fervently prayed for Anna's conversion.

THE ASSASSINATION.

Veil, now, O Liberty, thy blushing face,
 At the fell deed that thrills a startled world;
When fair Columbia weeps in dire disgrace,
 And bows in sorrow o'er the banner furled.

No graceless tyrant falls by vengeance here,
 Next the wild justice of the secret knife;
Nor red Ambition ends its grim career,
 And expiates its horrors with its life.

Nor here does rash Revenge misguided burn
 To free a nation from the assassin's dart;
Or roused Despair in angry madness turn,
 And tear its freedom from the despot's heart.

But where blest Liberty so widely reigns,
 And Peace and Plenty make a smiling land;
Here this mad wretch its fair, white record stains
 And blurs its beauties with a bloody hand.

Here the elect of millions, and the pride
 Of those who own his full and peaceful rule
Here Virtue [illegible] and yields the crimson tide
 Beneath the vile aggression of a fool.

Of the ninety-five companies doing business on this coast, and the 100 reporting to the New York insurance department, in point of paid up capital it ranks No. 7, while in point of assets it ranks No. 6. Adding its subscribed capital, subject to call, amounting to over $30,000,000, which, under the stringent laws of Great Britain governing unpaid capital, as fully illustrated in the failure of the Glasgow Bank, is available to the last dollar for its liabilities, it stands at the head of all the companies doing business in America; making it all, in actual resources, $33,767,890.66, and every policy issued pledges on its face, and in its contract binds its actual fire assets, every dollar of its authorized and subscribed capital of $30,000,000 to the payment of its fire losses.

THURSDAY MORNING, SEPT. 29, 1881.

"A POLITICAL NECESSITY."

The assassin says the death of the president was "a political necessity." He has repeatedly made this statement. In explanation he has several times remarked that it was necessary to "restore harmony to the republican party and secure peace to the country." The logic of all this is simple enough. It assumes that President Garfield by the stand he had taken against the methods and objects of the so-called "stalwart" faction led by Senator Conkling had produced discord in the republican party and disturbed the peace of the country. And as the president's firmness permitted no hope of restoration of the "old regime" while he lived, his death became a political necessity. There was not a particle of personal malice in the assassin. To any dear friend of the president he can truly say that his own sorrow for the president's sufferings was no less than his. There was respect for the president's station and honor for his talents, but death for his disobedience to spoils-hunting "stalwartism."

Perhaps it may be asked why all this is repeated. Who, let us ask in turn, is hurt by its repetition? The very fact that there are those who wince under it shows the need not only of repeating it, but of hammering it with incessant iteration. They who do not like to hear it are either followers or apologists of the spoils system, and are partisans of the brigand chiefs who support it. It was directly in the interest of this system that the assassin judged the president's death "a political necessity." But for the indecent and rancorous attack made by Conkling and his gang on the president, the latter would be living to-day. The assassin Guiteau is the political offspring of the thing called stalwartism, otherwise known as savage place-hunting, begotten upon the corrupt body of the spoils system. To hear this assassin pleading in justification of his deed that the death of the president was a political necessity to save Conkling's system of politics—for this is just what it amounts to,—should kindle fresh indignation against an accursed system, and lead men to form a new resolve to strike down all who support or uphold it. The real political necessity of the times is destruction of the system that produces a whole crop of sins and evils, including corruption, spoliation and murder. Why should we wonder that a system which lives by robbery culminates in assassination? At one end of the line is the robber chief; at the other his political child, the assassin. The political ancestry of Guiteau is not lost in the mists of doubt and speculation. His is a genealogy which is known of all men. He is the latest birth of a system of iniquity which has developed among us during these latter years, and he bears upon his character and in his conduct the proofs of his legitimacy. When his political parentage is considered he cannot be regarded as a monstrous or abnormal birth, but as a perfectly natural one. His own language shows the effect of the Conkling system of politics upon his life and reveals the inspiration of the deed which has horrified the world.

What are we to expect from an evil tree but evil fruit? One who was brought up to idleness from a child, and who drifted into the life of a professional impostor and vagrant swindler, would naturally develop an affinity for the wide system of public immorality that place-hunting, under the patronage of political bosses, has created. To him such a system, when upheld by men of professed respectability and actual power, would seem the embodiment of highest principle. Hence it became in his judgment "a political necessity" to remove a president who had taken a stand against it. In the main parts of his logic this assassin has plenty of supporters. They also think the spoils system the only true theory and practice of politics; and when a man like President Garfield tries to overthrow it they assail him violently, denounce him as a traitor to his party, declare him a disturber of the peace, and see no hope for restoration of "harmony" till he is out of the way. Most, however, would wait sullenly till his time expired. But the more eager assassin, following a the logic, would "catch the nearest way." On the main point the moral obliquity of the general supporters of the spoils system and of the assassin is the same. That it is so is a fact which shows how deeply this evil is entrenched, and how hard the fight must be that is to eradicate it.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR.

The well-known correspondent, "Gath," furnishes the San Francisco Chronicle with long sketch of the life of Chester A. Arthur, which contains points of present interest. The father of the president was born and educated at Belfast, Ireland. He was of rigid Protestant stock, and became an eminent Baptist clergyman. On coming to America he first resided in Canada, but subsequently removed to Vermont where his son, now President Arthur, was born. Afterwards he became pastor of a church in New York City, where he died in 1875. Chester A. Arthur was educated at Union College, Schenectady, New York, which was then under the presidency of the celebrated Dr. Eliphalet Nott. He graduated from that institution in 1849. After teaching a school in Vermont he went to New York City and studied law in the office of Erastus D. Culver. He married a daughter of Lieutenant Herndon, who went down on the steamship "Central America." Mr. Arthur has been a republican from the first organization of the party. He soon became prominent in its councils in the state of New York. At the outbreak of the war Gov. Morgan made him quartermaster general of the state, a very important position, in which he made a high reputation. He continued in it till the close of the war, raising, equipping and dispatching troops, transacting a purchasing business of enormous amounts, and keeping the New York regiments up to the highest standard of military efficiency. President Grant made him collector of the port of New York, which position he filled for several years, but from which he was removed by President Hayes for reasons growing out of differences of opinion as to the administration of the office. Gen. Arthur is a man of talents, though it must be admitted that he was nominated for the vice-presidency with a view rather to "conciliation" of the section of the party that was defeated in its effort to nominate General Grant than with a view to selection of a man to succeed to the presidential office. But this practice has for many years been a very common one with both parties. Heretofore the fruits of it have always been disappointing. It remains to see whether President Arthur will not reverse the uniformly discouraging experiences which have hitherto resulted from the succession of the vice-president to the chief executive office. While not many are very confident, all are willing to wait and see.

Great men, or men in great place, "unbend" in England more than in America. The dukes of Portland and Hamilton, while attending the Goodwood races recently, found "a Birmingham pet" and a London pugilist on the ground, and between them made up a purse of five hundred pounds for a fight. They selected a party of choice sports and adjourned to a retired place about a mile from the course, and set the bruisers to work, hugely enjoying blackened eyes and bloody noses, until they had fun enough for their money, and so throwing a few pounds to pay for the beer of the mob, ordered the ring to be broken up and the stake divided. If Secretary Blaine and President Arthur's son, or a brace of American senators should get up an "entertainment" of this kind the country would probably talk about it.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat puts Sergeant Mason's case in this way: "It is absurd to talk of punishing Mason for shooting at Guiteau, inasmuch as Guiteau was not in sight when the shot was fired. How can one man commit a deadly assault upon another man whom he cannot see? The position of Guiteau at the time the shot was fired was such that no man could hurt him from the outside of the jail. It may be that Mason, counting on Guiteau's presence in a certain spot at a certain time, fired with the expectation of hitting him; but Guiteau was unfortunately absent, and Mason is entitled to the benefit of Guiteau's mistake. His only crime was the discharge of firearms without orders, for which, under the circumstances, he ought to be cashiered as a sergeant—and immediately appointed a lieutenant."

Memorial resolutions, sermons and orations on the death of President Garfield, continue to come to us in large numbers, with request that they be printed. We should be gratified to comply, but it is impossible. The space available in any newspaper has a limit, and though THE OREGONIAN has resources for printing matter in detail and at length which no other paper of the northwest possesses, still it is obliged to pass over very much that it would like to publish. It has now on hand from various quarters resolutions and discourses on the death of the president which would fill perhaps thirty columns of its small type. Much of this matter is as good as any is printed. We are obliged to decline it simply because our columns cannot carry it.

The Astorian says: "The Savanac is the deepest vessel that ever sailed in over the bar. She was drawing 21½ feet." That is, she is the deepest vessel that ever came in without the aid of a tug. So it appears that the water on the bar is still deep enough to accommodate very deep vessels even without a tug. It is probable that there is actually as good depth of water now on the Columbia bar as there ever was. At all events there is not less than 27 feet at high water, which is better depth than there was at the entrance of New York harbor during the space of two centuries after it became a port.

Prof. Bell, the electrician, claims that he has succeeded in inventing a machine that will "locate a bullet in the human body," and do it infallibly. He needn't think that anything new. We have in and about Portland a great number of "gentlemen" who carry instruments of this kind, and use them with singular skill and freedom. Juries are inquiring about it and seem disposed to discourage the practice as a branch of easy and familiar science.

Herbert Spencer in one of his late essays gives us his idea of a democracy. "Political freedom," he remarks, "is an external result of an internal sentiment. In origin, practice and permanence it is dependent on the moral sense, and it is only when this is supreme in its influence that so high form of social organization as a democracy can be maintained."

In all parts of New York the republicans are electing delegates to their state convention in opposition to the Conkling machine. It looks as if the influence of the ex-boss in the convention would be of the smallest.

Daily Oregonian.
THURSDAY MORNING, SEPT. 29, 1881.

CITY.

THE LATE EARL OF AIRLIE.—Lord Airlie died on Sunday morning at the Windsor hotel at Denver, after only one day's illness. The cause was a congestive chill, occasioned by contracting a severe cold. His body was embalmed and forwarded the following evening to Dundee for burial at Cortachy castle, alongside his ancestors. It will be accompanied by his son, Lord Ogilvy, now the earl of Airlie, who was with him at the time of his death. The late earl was president of the Oregonian railway, of the Dundee Mortgage Company, of the Oregon and Washington Mortgage Bank, of the Dundee Land Company, and of the Prairie Cattle Company. He was one of the originators and promoters of the Oregon Trust Company and bank in 1873, along with Wm. Reid, who was then United States consul at Dundee. He was a liberal in the house of lords, and a firm supporter of Mr. Gladstone's government, and was one of those enlightened noblemen of Scotland who believed that in time the house of lords would be abolished in England. He was one of the sixteen representative peers of Scotland regularly sent to the house of lords by vote of his brother peers of Scotland. He owned a greater portion of the Stephen's donation land claim near Portland, (Terwilliger's addition), said to have been bought for his daughter, Lady Mabel Ogilvy, who visited this city with him last fall. He was beloved by all his tenantry and astonished them by voluntary reductions of their rents on account of bad crops in Scotland last year. His several estates in Scotland will now go by hereditary descent to his eldest son, the present earl, who under the late discontented pets of Great Britain has power to dispose of and sell these estates without the consent of his own children. This death is much regretted by Mr. Reid, resident manager of the institution at whose head Lord Airlie stood, as well as by all the gentlemen connected with the enterprise.

TOLEDO, W. T.—An occasional correspondent, writing under date of Sept. 25th, says: "Toledo is situated on the west side of the Cowlitz river 30 miles from its mouth and six miles east of Winlock on the N. P. R. R. At present the water is too low for steamboat navigation. As soon as the river rises shipping grain to Portland will commence. The grain crop is good. We have had some rain this harvest, but the most of the grain is secured in good condition. Kellogg's warehouse, 40x100 feet, is fast filling up with wheat and oats. Quite a number of new comers have located around here this summer. There is room for a great many more, both on government and railroad lands. In regard to health, it is one of the best places I ever saw for a doctor to starve. Any one who is not afraid to work, and wants to find a home, can go further and fare worse."

THE LADIES' SOCIETY BALL.—To-morrow night the concert and ball by the Ladies' Relief Society will take place at Mechanics' pavilion. The proceeds are entirely for the benefit of the children of the Home and on this account the affair should be a financial success. That the entertainment will be a well conducted, the list of committees, published Tuesday morning, is sufficient guarantee. Tickets are for sale at the principal stores, and persons will be called upon to buy. Those who do not wish to attend will find much enjoyment in meeting old friends and acquaintances during the promenade. They will be at little expense, and will be able to contribute to one of the most worthy objects of Portland's support. THE OREGONIAN hopes to see the pavilion crowded.

[illegible].—The committee of the common council appointed to investigate the charges against W. B. Chapman, city surveyor, by W. [illegible], met in the auditor's office last evening. [illegible] demanded his fees before he would [illegible] and as no provision had been made to defray the expenses of the investigation, the committee [illegible] to submit that and some other questions [illegible] and authority to the whole [illegible] adjourned until Friday evening next. The members of the board request all taxpayers to come forward and examine their assessments and have corrections made [illegible] it can be done without expense [illegible] not wait until the board adjourns, [illegible] themselves and the officials much [illegible] in addition to the loss of the state tax to [illegible].

The case was up in [illegible] yesterday and continued until to-[illegible], the accused furnishing $300 bail for his appearance. Sam Duck says it is a job put up on him by [illegible], and he will be able to clear himself from [illegible] charge.

[illegible].—When the safe of the Wheeler & Wilson sewing machine company, on Morrison street near Fifth, was opened yesterday morning [illegible], which had been placed therein [illegible] before was found missing. The safe combination and the doors of the office were intact [illegible] is no clue to the robber or robbers.

[illegible] VISITORS.—Mr. Henry Villard, president of the Northern Pacific Railroad Co., and [illegible] distinguished members of the party, [illegible] have been mentioned before, are passengers on the steamer Columbia which sailed [illegible] from San Francisco yesterday.

AN ALARMING RUMOR.

But Happily a False One.

Last evening at 9 o'clock the following came in dispatches to THE OREGONIAN:

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.

It is reported from various sources that President Arthur has been shot.

A few minutes later the following was received, also from Chicago:

Nothing definite about Arthur being shot. It is believed there is no truth in the report; but there is considerable excitement at news centres. It is stated that a Cincinnati paper issued an extra on strength of the report.

In a few minutes more Chicago again telegraphed:

The rumor is denied by the Washington agent of the associated press.

BRIEF NOTES.

The board of Equalization is in session.

The steamer State will sail hence to-morrow.

Special meeting of the common council this evening.

News of another tragedy reaches us from Jacksonville.

D. S. Dobbins takes the helm of the Fleetwood this morning, on her trip to Astoria.

Alice Lingard and company, will be the next attraction at New Market Theater. They sail on the steamer of the 7th.

The British ship Doxworth from Liverpool via Honolulu and Victoria, with a cargo of salt and liquor has arrived.

"This bridge is dangerous," is the startling announcement posted at the east end of the Washington street structure.

"What's good for lives?" asked an afflicted wife of her husband. "Bees quiet as possible, honey," was the answer. She waxed wroth and gave him a good combing down.

THE HOME BALL AND CONCERT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

We have heard expressions of surprise from some persons that we should go on with the preparations for the concert and charity ball as advertised for Friday evening. There is not a member of the Ladies' Relief Society, probably, that does not feel sincere regret that circumstances compel us to give the entertainment this week, but it cannot be avoided. The directors must have the pavilion October 1st, and our leave to use it expires with Friday the 30th inst. Many of our tickets are sold, and arrangements have progressed so far that to recede now from our agreement would cause us considerable pecuniary loss.

Should we postpone it until after the fair, the obstacles in the way would be so greatly multiplied that it would be better to give it up at once and altogether until next year.

Meantime the home must be sustained, the children fed and clothed, and we do not propose to allow our treasury to be so depleted as to be driven to beg for their bread from month to month. No doubt upon a little reflection it will be seen that it is often necessary to do things that under ordinary circumstances we would never do.

Affairs in Washington go on as usual, notwithstanding the genuine grief that animates the community, and so it is in life.

We hope that our motives in proceeding with our entertainment will not be misunderstood, and that our sincere respect and affection for our lamented president will not be questioned. M. H. H.

NEWS NOTES FROM SALEM.

SALEM, Sept. 28, 1881.

W. H. Odell, Esq., went to Eugene this morning.

Hon. J. F. Watson, judge of the second judicial district, is in this city.

P. J. Martin, Esq., of Portland, is in Salem on business connected with the Dalles Military Wagon Road Company.

Mrs. A. M. Belt has purchased the residence formerly owned by James Walton, and will again make her home in this city.

Joseph Meyer, Esq., and bride, are expected home today, and will no doubt receive a cordial welcome from his numerous friends.

The supreme court of the state of Oregon will convene in this city on Monday next. A large number of cases are already docketed.

Capt. George W. Belt, formerly of this city, is now associate editor of the Polk county Itemizer and wears his honors with becoming grace.

Work on the insane asylum building is progressing with encouraging speed. Contractor Mann is rushing the brick work forward with astonishing rapidity.

Oscar Taylor and family started overland by private conveyance for California a few days since, where they contemplate making their future home.

Rev. Taylor Chambers has yielded to the unanimous and urgent request of his congregation in this city, and will very shortly return from the east to assume charge of St. Paul's Episcopal parish in this city.

News has been received in this city announcing the death, on Sunday last, at Los Angeles, Cal., of Mrs. G. C. Davis, mother of Mrs. Jew. Hirsch of this city. Mrs. Davis resided here for several years and was highly esteemed by all who knew her.

The breezes whisper the news of the betrothal of Carl Adler, Esq., a prominent merchant of Astoria, and Miss Laura Hirsch, daughter of Leopold Hirsch, Esq., of this city. The marriage will be solemnized probably some time during the ensuing winter.

Claude Thayer, Esq., having recently purchased a ranch over in Tillamook county, will at once start a dairy farm in addition to continuing his practice as an attorney at law. He has been appointed the local agent for that county of the board of school land commissioners.

Rev. A. Simpson of Corvallis, has been in the city for several days soliciting aid in the construction of a new Presbyterian church building at Independence. His moral suasion qualifications touched the pockets of many and he received quite a liberal contribution from our citizens.

Considerable anxiety is felt over the mysterious disappearance of Patrick McMahon, who has not been seen since Saturday evening, and he being then under the influence of liquor. Fears are entertained that some harm has befallen him and parties were engaged yesterday in dragging the river for his remains.

Governor Thayer has recently granted the following commutations of sentence of convicts in the Oregon penitentiary: Thos. is Cain, sent from Marion county for one year from Oct. 22, 1880, for the crime of larceny. Ah Coon and Ah Wong, both sent from Multnomah county for one year from Oct. 18, 1880, for the crime of larceny; reasons assigned for executive clemency, extra services and term of sentence being nearly expired. Kalatenne sent from Umatilla county for two years from May 5, 1880, for the crime of larceny. W. Dencer, sent from Wasco county for one year from December 16, 1880, for the crime of larceny. Reason assigned for executive clemency, extra work in the insane asylum.

Mr. Guiteau has still many warm and interested friends who are attentive through the mails, unconscious, perhaps, that the missives are never delivered. A Baltimore person sent on a duck that had died of disease, and desired that the assassin should partake of it all. Most persons would rather die than eat it, such was the duck's condition, but Guiteau never knew that the feast was ready for him.

Of its Agricultural and Mining Interests, General Industries, Resources, Etc.—A Rich and Lovely Region.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.]

SOUTH BOUND.

JACKSONVILLE, Sept. 15, 1881.

One trip from Portland to Roseburg is very much like all others. On the train there is always the drummer with swell ulster and prodigious high collar of gaudy pattern, who talks about his business, his travels and the extra baggage rate he pays; there is always the little squad of jolly but well-behaved drummers, who are ashamed of the other fellow whose obtrusiveness and loud manners give "the road" a bad name; there is always the foolish woman who pushes acquaintance with all the ladies and tells unasked where she lives, how long she has been married, and her most personal affairs in a tone which rises above the thunder of rail and wheel; there is always the ministerial brother clothed in dignity and a buttoned coat, who tries to read but finally falls asleep and snores; there is always the fellow who is going to write some letters (which may or may not be published) to what he calls "an eastern journal," in fact his little neighborhood weekly, and who asks many questions, makes a great show of taking notes and insists upon reading to you descriptive passages "just dotted down", but which he privately considers fine writing; there is always during the first hours of the trip the Salem young man, who may be recognized by the cut of his pantaloons—small at the knee, bell shaped at the bottom—and the old cross-bow style of his neck scarf; also the Salem girl in a linen ulster—made just like every other girl's ulster in Salem—a pretty hat and a neat shoe, who secretly wonders who all the young men on the train are, and decides under her half-veil which she thinks the best looking; there is always the pale woman with a boy of five and a girl of three and a teething baby, who is going for the first time since her marriage to visit her folks and who worries for fear no one will be at the depot to meet her; there is always the well dressed lady of forty who is going to join her husband, who came out from the east a year ago and has established himself in business; there is always the nice young lady who gives the drummer the "cold shake" to the great amusement and delight of everybody; there is always the up-country storekeeper, who used, before the days of the railroad to go over the route in a buggy and who flows over with reminiscences of many trips to the distress of his hearers and the high entertainment of himself; there is always half a car full of emigrants not yet recovered from the sickness nor free from the dirt of the sea trip; there is always the train boy who sells you a dime's worth of oranges for two-bits; there is always Stroud or Bogart or Bellinger; there is always the hurried dinner at Albany; there is always the annoyance of stops at a score of dreary little towns, each exactly like all the others; there is always the slow crawl up the side of the Calipooias; there is always the good supper at Oak and with pretty Fannie Thomas and her far from pretty pa, to wait on the table; there is always the agreeable chance to snub some intruding fool; there is always the opportunity to do a kind act for somebody, generally the pale woman with the sick baby—well, I might go on for two columns, but these are the characteristic points. After a run of 11 hours which seems an age—that is a tender age—the train reaches Roseburg, where, if you are a through passenger you mount a stage in waiting and sail away.

Now comes variety. You have left the cars, the ill-bred woman, the snoring minister, the sick baby and its distressed mother, the tired immigrants and their pinched children and all the rest but the jolly drummers, and have in stead a lofty seat beside a driver who handles his reins and whip as delicately and with as much pride as a woman ties the ribbons of her Sunday bonnet, six splendid horses who dash along a mountain road at a half run, striking fire with their iron hoofs, a cool, delightful air, a glorious night—and what is not quite so pleasant, the prospect of a twenty hours' ride without sleep or rest.

Fred. Hart, in his "Nevada book," sighs that "staging ain't what it used to be." He was writing of Nevada where railroads have spoiled the business, but between Redding in California and Roseburg in Oregon staging of the romantic early day sort still survives. The stages are the old Concord coaches which swing and heave like a ship at sea; the drivers are daring, skillful, gallant fellows, the horses are fine roadsters, well fed and always on their mettle; the road is rough and picturesque like the old California and Nevada roads—all is the same and all sadly reminiful of days and scenes that will never come again. If there breathes a man with soul so dead that he don't enjoy a ride on the box with the driver of a six horse stage—that is, the first two hours of it—he's too nice to live. It is true, the novelty wears off after a while, also I may say the nap of one's trousers, but for a time it is glorious. Mrs. Duniway of the Northwest, Job Martin the driver and myself sat on the box last Monday night and made a light fit. The first half of the night was delightful, the early morning hours were very cold, the day following was intensely hot, all the time we were half smothered in dust.

Going south the stage enters

JACKSON COUNTY

at its southeast corner. As the traveler looks from the stage box from a summit point, he sees spread out before him a valley quite as enchanting as the lovely land that Moses saw. Jackson county is almost square, and its area is about 3000 square miles, one-third of which is level prairie country, perfectly adapted to agriculture. It is drained to its most remote corners by Rogue river and its small tributaries, and little valleys of clear, rich land open out on every side. Between the valleys rise a succession of peaks a little too high to be called hills and not quite lofty enough for mountains. An enthusiastic old settler speaking of these ranges said that there was so much good country in Jackson county that there was not room to spread it all out. Viewed from any single place, the whole country seems to be mountainous, but there is always a valley at the bottom of each canyon. The picturesque abounds on every hand and is perhaps valuable in its way, but hardly compensates for steep, difficult and expensive roads. The Rogue river valley proper reaches from Grant's Pass on the north to Ashland on the south, forty-three miles, and its width varies from one to twenty-two miles. It is occupied throughout by farms.

The climate of Jackson county is very much like that of central and northern California, being very different from the prevailing wet of northwestern Oregon. The average temperature for the year is about 58 degrees. The highest temperature, directly in the sun, ever known, was 115, and the lowest ever known was 22 above zero. Generally the lowest point reached during the winter is 30 degrees above zero.

Peaches, hardly equal to the splendid fruit of California or Delaware, but still very fine and far surpassing the product of Hood river and other points north, grow in great abundance. Apples, the finest in the world, grow here, and can be bought for twenty-five cents a bushel. Plums, grapes, cherries, blackberries, strawberries and other orchard and garden fruits of the finest size and flavor, are raised in abundance and without any special effort. Jackson is the only county in the state which grows grapes to the extent of making viniculture an important feature of its industries. All about Jacksonville there are vineyards which show careful cultivation, a sure sign that there is money in the business. The vines are now loaded with rich purple fruit, whose flavor is fine and whose wine-producing quality cannot be excelled, except in perhaps a few favored localities of California. As a general fruit country it is ahead of any other in the state. Whenever a railroad opens the way to market this region will send out many millions of pounds of fruit each year.

Every sort of garden vegetable that grows in a temperate climate is raised here. Sweet potatoes, which grow nowhere else in Oregon, have been raised successfully, and a little encouragement by way of market and demand would develop an important and paying business in this vegetable alone.

Grain—wheat, oats, barley, rye and corn—grows everywhere in the bottoms, and corps are always large and never fail. As a wheat country, Jackson is not equal to the Willamette valley, but is much better than any of the western states. Farms which have been cropped in wheat for twenty-six successive seasons this year produced twenty-five bushels per acre. The quality is about a medium between Willamette valley and Walla Walla wheat. Corn grows here better than anywhere else in the state. It is next to wheat the most important crop raised in the Rogue river valley and every farmer has a large field. It is used almost exclusively for feed. As a corn country, Jackson county, measured by the best standard is about of the second rate—equaling Iowa or Kansas. Its special advantage is that there is never a failure.

Sugar cane also grows well and several hundred gallons of sorghum are annually sold.

It is not possible to give the figures of crops in this county because there are no places of general shipment and no records kept.

THE INDUSTRIES

Of Jackson county are those of an agricultural and mining country with but little variation. The greater part of the people live on farms, good farms too, and are engaged in the business of grain raising or fruit growing. The absence of any way to take produce out of the county, of course greatly restricts operations and keeps down prices and profits. Jackson county sells comparatively nothing to the outside world. The mines afford a limited home market, the stage companies' scores of horses and army of men, afford another limited market, the miners of Josephine county buy grain for their horses, and flour and vegetables for themselves, and the stock raisers of Lake county still come in numbers to Jackson for their supplies of food. No farm produce is exported, though the county is eminently an agricultural county and its people farmers.

Stock business does not amount to much. Every farmer has a few head of cattle, horses, sheep, hogs, etc., but beyond supplying beef, mutton and pork to the miners, not much is done. The home market is well supplied with butter and cheese of local manufacture.

There are five flouring mills in the county which grind all the grain raised and make a good article of flour. Three or four small saw mills supply the local and mining demand for lumber. Following are prices current at Jacksonville:

Wheat 60c per bushel.
Flour, $15 per 1000 pounds.
Potatoes, 1c per pound.
Eggs, 12½c per dozen.
Butter 25c per pound.
Good milch cows $20.

The business of wine and brandy making has been fairly started here and will, in time develop largely. Mr. J. N. T. Miller and a Frenchman named Murat, living just out of Jacksonville, put up last year about 2000 gallons of wine and some hundreds of gallons of brandy.

A woolen mill at Ashland turns out a good quality of cloth, and with new machinery now being put in will be an important feature in the business of the country. It has already demonstrated that cloth manufacture will pay, and already affords a good home market for wool.

But the great special industry is

MINING

All the mines operated in this county are placers, and at this season present the unsightly appearance of scars upon the country, very much resembling abandoned brick yards. There are several fine quartz ledges in the county, but to operate them mills must be employed, and none have yet been put in. Just what the annual yield of the mines here is, it is impossible to say. Mr. C. C. Beekman, banker of Jacksonville and agent of Wells, Fargo & Co., whose opportunities for knowledge of the matter are better than those of any other one man, told me that he could not even guess intelligently. The dust is used as a circulating medium among the miners, part of it is sold at the Jacksonville bank, part is traded at the stores, part is shipped by registered package, part is shipped by express, and part is carried out by the miners themselves. The difficulties of the situation may be seen. Only in a general way, I may say that the annual gold production of the county approaches half a million dollars, much of which finds its way into the hands of farmers and merchants of the county.

I had hoped to visit mines in operation and give to readers of THE OREGONIAN a detailed account of the methods employed in gathering up the shining grains, but found absolutely nothing doing at this dry season. The following table, showing the names of the various mining localities with the number of men employed, will give some idea of the extent of the business. It must be borne in mind that a single locality may include a dozen camps, each of which has its distinctive local name here omitted:

Localities.	No. Men Emp'd.
Leland or Grave creek	20
Jump Off Joe creek	15
Pleasant creek	40
Louse creek	11
Foot's creek	25
Gall's creek	12
Dry Diggings	35
Willow springs	50
Jackson creek	40
Jackass	40
Sterling (incl'g Buncomb and Little Applegate)	100
Big Applegate	60
Farris' gulch	10
Squaw creek	7
Humbug	7
Steamboat	12
Forty-Nine Diggings	5
Total	446

This is as nearly a correct estimate as careful inquiry in any part could develop. Fully one half of the men engaged in mining are Chinese, and one of the principal mining bosses and proprietors is a Chinaman. The mining season commences in November or December, with the winter rains, and lasts till May, the miners generally making enough during these months to keep them during the rest of the year. Every process of water mining from the old-fashioned rocker to the most approved hydraulic methods are employed in these mines.

Total population	9,054

The county assessment roll shows the following property valuations:

Land (211,960 acres at $3 68 per acre for unimproved and $5 75 for improved)	$ 759,359
Implements	634,309
Town lots (in Jacksonville, Ashland and Phœnix)	52,402
Improvements on town lots	247,223
Mdse and implements	324,239
Money and accounts	554,270
Furniture, etc	65,277
Horses and mules ($33½ per head)	113,402
Cattle ($7 53 per head)	67,080
Sheep ($1 22½ per head)	44,044
Swine ($1 39 per head)	13,78[illegible]
Total valuation	$2,889,295

The valuation especially on lands, is very low, and the total assessment is not more than one half the actual total value of the property of the county.

Following is a list of the county officers:

Judge—S. J. Day.
Sheriff—Wm. Bybee.
Clerk—Henry Klippel.
Treasurer—Henry Pape.
Assessor—Thos. E. Nichols.
School superintendent—J. D. Fountain.
Surveyor—Jeff Jes.
Coroner—Veit Shultz.
Commissioners—Messrs. Alford and Cook.
Senator—Hon. John Ross.
Representatives—Thos. Smith and Dr. Stanley.

The county indebtedness is $16,500 in outstanding warrants and the tax rate is 20 mills on the dollar. Jackson is strongly democratic.

The slow growth of Jackson county is due to its lack of TRANSPORTATION FACILITIES.

It was first settled in 1851 and the first settlers turned their attention almost exclusively to mining, only raising enough food for themselves. After a while the good lands were picked up and became farms, but as there was no means of getting produce to market, no effort was made to push the business of agriculture for which the whole region is so well adapted. Rogue river, while it is deep enough to float steamboats, is a swift stream and so fretted with rocky obstructions that it can never be successfully navigated, and all other streams are small and unimportant. There can never be water transportation in Jackson county. The only regular means of communication now is the Oregon & California stage line, which carries passengers, the mails and small express freight, and the only means of getting merchandise, etc., into the county is by freight wagons. Jacksonville, which is the county seat, and its general distributing point is an even hundred miles from the nearest point reached by railroad, and the road rough and mountainous—in winter impassable for heavily loaded wagons. In the business of freighting over the road, about twenty teams of four or six horses each are regularly engaged, and the load hauled is about 6000 pounds. For this two cents per pound is charged. Most of the goods sold in the stores are bought in San Francisco are shipped by steamer to Portland, from Portland to Roseburg by car and then over the mountains. The freight charges on a two hundred pound barrel of sugar from San Francisco to Jacksonville amount to $7. Besides, there is time, damage by handling, insurance, etc. Prices of everything imported are about fifteen per cent. higher than in Portland.

Wool or other produce sent out of the county must pay the same high rate over the mountains, and having reached the railroad at Roseburg, another high rate. To make money by shipping anything of great bulk or weight is out of the question, and is scarcely attempted. The teams employed in freighting are generally fine animals and wonderfully well trained. Horse flesh is the passion of almost every man in southern Oregon, and no county in the state can show finer teams than Jackson.

In summer daily stages make the trip from Roseburg to Jacksonville in nineteen hours with seven changes of horses, and in winter they do the best they can—sometimes twenty-five hours, sometimes fifty. The passage rate is $14 75, or about 15c per mile. On the through line between Roseburg and Redding, distance 275 miles, the stage company employs 225 horses, 6 coaches and 12 drivers and maintains 23 stations, at each of which two men are employed. Drivers cover 45 miles in a day, and their pay is $55 per month with board and lodging. To feed its stock the company buys 60,000 bushels of grain and 1000 tons of hay annually. It maintains repairing shops, blacksmith shops, etc., etc., all along the line at great expense. The line is owned by J. L. Sanderson & Co., mail contractors, of St. Louis. Its manager is Col. W. S. Stone; agent of Oregon division, Mr. Wm. Carll, and agent at Roseburg, Mr. George Engle. The stage is the big thing of southern Oregon. Arrivals and departures are the sensations of the day at all the little towns, and the drivers are the best known and most popular men in the country.

IN GENERAL.

There are two good towns in Jackson county—Jacksonville and Ashland, in each of which there are about 850 people. Jacksonville has a good public school, which 230 children attend each day, two newspapers, a school for girls taught by sisters of charity, three churches—Presbyterian, Catholic and Methodist, a planing mill, a dozen small brick buildings, twenty or more stores, a small bank, and a general variety of village establishments of various sorts.

Ashland has a woolen mill, a newspaper, a good school under the patronage of the Methodist church, two churches, four brick stores, marble works, etc., and is a thriving place. It is admitted even by the people of Jacksonville to be the prettiest town in southern Oregon.

Phœnix and Eagle Point are small but prosperous country towns.

The timber resources of Jackson county are important but almost entirely undeveloped, a few small saw mills only supplying the home demand for lumber. Yellow fir, sugar pine, oak, ash, cedar and alder abound in great quantities, and may be drawn upon when required. The undergrowth is less dense than in western Oregon and Washington, and consists of manzanita, greasewood, laurel, madrone, etc. The forests afford all kinds of game, large and small, and trout abound in the rivers and creeks.

To-morrow I shall take stage for Roseburg. If I live through the trip, you will hear from me there; "otherwise, otherwise." A. H.

ALLEGED JOKES.

From reliable authority comes the assurance that they have neither frogs, rats or snakes in Greenland. A man with delirium tremens must feel awfully lonesome over there.

"Can there be happiness where there is no love?" solemnly queries an author in a book on marriage. Not much happiness, perhaps, but if the girl is awfully rich there can be lots of fun.

An Illinois man with a foresight worthy of a better cause, popped the question on a railroad train, and now the maiden is at a loss to decide as to which county she had better commence proceedings in for a breach of promise suit.

"Do you reside in this city?" asked a masked man of a masked lady at a masked party the other evening. He felt sick when she said to him in a low voice: "Don't be a fool, John, I know you by the wart on your thumb." It was his wife.

The London Times says that the action of the bank of England depends wholly on the news from this country. If this is so the bank officials must have been kept moving round pretty lively in August when the White Stockings lost six consecutive games.

Ex-Senator Dorsey is mentioned by the New Orleans Times as the owner of the best appointed cattle ranch on the continent. It occupies half a million acres of well watered grazing ground in New Mexico. A railroad stat on near the ranch is named "Dorsey." The star route business appears to have been lucrative.

The auditor of Virginia reports that there are 187,196 white and 114,193 colored voters in that state, a total of 301,389. The total vote for president a year ago was 217,315. A poll-tax levied on every man, and which must be paid before he can vote, prevented many thousands of colored men from exercising the elective franchise last year. The voter is required to pay up all the arrears and produce a receipt in full to the inspectors of the election. A great many whites as well as blacks are practically disfranchised by means of this head-money tax, invented by the democrats of Virginia to beat the republicans at the polls. The Mahone party promise to repeal this odious discrimination against poor men if they succeed in carrying the state at the next election.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, Sept. 28, 1881.

Valley wheat remains firm at $1 60 per cental. Eastern Washington is steady at 56@58 cents per bushel at shipping points.

Two vessels to arrive in December were taken yesterday at 65 shillings to Liverpool direct.

NEW YORK FREIGHTS AND MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Although there is not much improvement to note in the freight market there is a much better feeling, as shippers are in receipt of numerous orders and much earlier than usual in order to give manufacturers an opportunity to fill orders in ample season to ship by clipper, as was not the case last year. Ships loading are doing fairly, and the Armenia will finish this week, as will also the Charles Dennis. If the equinoctial storm does not interfere rates will remain very steady at last quotations, and there is no disposition to make concessions on any account. Tonnage is still very scarce and likely to remain so as very few vessels are coming this way. The Seminole from San Francisco will return from here to this port.

Markets have been very quiet, partly owing to the extreme hot weather of the last few days.

Wheat—@1½ higher

Butter—Active; cables were stronger, but still foreign markets are below this, and export trade light.

Provisions—Dull, heavy.

Rio coffee—Quiet, steady.

Refined sugars—In good and general demand; higher for some grades

Foreign fruits—In very fair demand and negotiations pending for a considerable movement of certain goods.

Hides are dull and unchanged.

Petroleum—Easier.

Turpentine—Slow and easier.

Crude, whale and sperm oils—Active; sales 100 bbls of sperm. 90@92 has since been refused for 500 bbls. Holders are now quoting 95 to $1 10.

New York Freights Situation.

Although there are no new features in the freight market via Cape Horn, there seems to be a very general feeling that the season will be an active one. This is based upon the fact that many shippers are already in receipt of orders, and that future ones will be larger than usual, and that it is thought that here will be considerable cancelling of contracts with railroads during the ensuing three months, especially by large shippers, many of whom will return to clippers if they do not go over the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe road. At any rate it is understood that there is considerable dissatisfaction with the present contract system and it will have to be revised somehow. Rates remain very steady notwithstanding the quiet sales of the market. Tonnage is still scarce, and as many of the old California lines are scattered in different parts of the world it is probable that agents will have difficulty in getting suitable ships for lines. Markets are very quiet, partly owing to very unseasonable weather.

Wheat—Is dull; shippers' cables order them to stop buying.

Provisions—Dull and unchanged.

Rio coffee—Quiet.

Refined sugars—In fair demand with reduction in prices.

All grades of foreign fruits firm; Valencia raisins and Malagas higher abroad, but unchanged here.

Hops—Fairly active; choice 1881, 23@25c. It is stated 23c has been bid for choice California to arrive.

Hides—Dull.

Turpentine—Dull and easier.

Petroleum—About steady.

Quicksilver—Dull; 41@41½, but has advanced in London to six shillings one penny.

Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, Sept. 28.—The wool trade has been quiet, owing to the ceremonies of Monday, but prices are very firm and the outlook continues encouraging. The demand continues to run largely in fine fleeces, and evidently at the present rate of consumption the stock of fine fleeces will run short later in the season. Medium grades are in demand. Fine delaine and desirable lots of washed and combing are sought after, sales of Ohio and Pa. fleeces being 43@45 for X and XX, and no wools in good condition can now be bought under these figures. Wisconsin and Michigan X fleeces have been sold 40@42½. Desirable lots of Michigan are generally held at 42@42½. Medium and No. 1 fleeces are in demand with firm sales, at prices ranging from 45c to 47c. Unwashed fleeces continue in demand. All grades are sought after, from carpet stock to fine and choice medium. Sales ranged from 19c to 24c for low and coarse, 25@34c fine, 27@35c for medium grades, including choice lots for 33@35c. In combing and delaine fleeces, sales ranged from 45c to 48c for fine delaine, 46c to 50c for medium and choice combings, and 40@42c for coarse. California wool is in request and has been holding more freely than for sometime past. Pulled wools are firm and in demand with sales low. Super, 30@35c good and choice; 40@45c; and fancy lots, 47@50. In oregon wool there has been no movement of any importance within the last few days. The stock, both of carpet and clothing wools, are considerably reduced and small stocks now on hand are held firm.

Heavy Rise in Wheat.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—There was an extraordinary rise in wheat on the regular board to-day, and still more extraordinary advance on the call board. Prices on call as compared with Saturday's closing were about seven cents higher, and as compared with closing on regular board four to five cents higher. The cause of the advance is by some attributed to a corner, by others to the great short sales that are supposed to have been made, and by still others to the fact that everybody seems to be buying. It was said to-day that the Cincinnatians who realized so heavily on the August corner were short on September, and sold a million bushels this morning to break the market, but failing in this they began to buy heavily to cover their shorts, thus swelling the boom in prices. Rates for wheat were higher to-day than for several years past, and there seems to be less corners here than in Milwaukie, to which city 22,000 bushels were shipped.

The Liverpool Grain Market.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 27.—Breadstuffs firm. Wheat 10s 9d@11s per cental California average white; 11s 2d@11s 6d club; 10s@11s 6 red western spring, and 10s 1d@11s 2c for red winter. Breadstuffs receipts, wheat for past 3 days were 285,000 centals, including 221,000 American.

Gold and Stock Reports.

CHARTERS.

Guiteaus and their Relations.

[New York Times.]

After the victim of an assassin, and the victim's family, no one is more to be pitied than the assassin's innocent relations. Let honest men and women picture to themselves what it would be to be covertly pointed at all their lives as near relatives of Guiteau—to feel that on entering a room full of people a dozen are whispering "That lady is the sister of the man who shot President Garfield." This is the cup at the fullest of those condemned to bear the burden of relatives' iniquities. But there is a much larger class who, while not exposed to mortification so profound as this, have to endure the torturing from some one in their immediate circle who seems to have been born only to vex, irritate and annoy his or her belongings. There are in fact, few large families but are cursed with a species of Guiteau, who, there is ample evidence to prove, has all his life been a trouble to his friends. Sometimes it is the idle, vain, spendthrift son, who started in a career sure to be restarted, who is sublimely indifferent to expostulation, entreaty, remonstrance, and is a subject every day of fresh anxiety. Sometimes it is a wayward, peevish, quarrelsome daughter who sets everybody at odds, and produces a state of discomfort wherever she goes; saying and doing precisely the wrong thing and furious if found fault with. Perhaps the most hopelessly difficult of all is the member of a family whom all have agreed to be more or less cracked, but whose insanity is not sufficiently pronounced to decisively demand his being placed under control. These Guiteaus in the family circle are the heavy cross borne by many who are to all outward seeming happy and prosperous. In France, the conseil de famille steps in with some relief, the law, we believe, wherein a certain number of the nearest relatives are, upon a concerted course of action, generally giving its sanction to their arrangements. If it had been possible to adopt such a course here, without infringing too much on the liberty of the citizen, Guiteau might long since have been placed by his family under control as a dangerous nuisance likely at any moment to commit some stupendous folly or even crime.

The New York Sun is to be given credit for this departure from the usual Ishmaelitish practice: "It is James G. Blaine who has fearlessly told the truth about the president's condition. The country will not forget the fact. We respectfully call the attention of Queen Victoria to this circumstance, because, should Mr. Blaine happen ever to be minister to St. James', we desire to bespeak for him a cordial reception. Mr. Blaine may not have so much skill as some of the president's physicians but he would seem to have more truthfulness than all of them together."

The exact majority for Dingley, republican nominee for congress in the second district of Maine, is 5173. Frye's majority in 1880 was 1966. Dingley's victory surprises friends as well as foes.

The Most Successful Physician on the Pacific Coast in the Treatment of

ALL CHRONIC & DIFFICULT DISEASES.

DR. BRENAN WILL GUARANTEE TO CURE any form of Disease of the generative organs or private disease. He has become an expert in the treatment of disease weakness and derangement of the reproductive organs of both male and female, including diseases caused by the

FOLLIES OF YOUTH,

Such as SPERMATORRHEA, or SEMINAL WEAKNESS, or LOSS OF PERFECT VITALITY. Nearly two-thirds of all the Chronic Diseases spring, either directly or indirectly, from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by the majority of the Medical Profession.

I know that persons who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted by any form of sexual disease have a delicacy in calling upon the proper physician in time, from a sense of modesty and sometimes from ignorance, and permit those diseases to exist until their constitutions become corrupted, their organizations broken down and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence.

Everything strictly confidential under all circumstances.

Lost manhood perfectly restored. Catarrh, Bronchitis, Throat Diseases, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint, and all Diseases of the Eye and Ear, Stomach and Bladder, he can cure without fail. Consultation Free; and a list of printed questions sent to those living at a distance who cannot consult him personally. Enclose postage stamp for list.

Office—132 and 134 Third St., opposite Masonic Hall. Office Hours—From 10 to 12 A. M., 2 to 5 and 7 to 8 P. M. All letters of professional business must be addressed DR. PAUL M. BRENAN & CO., Portland, Oregon.
